Charlie had expected to see snow and mountains right from the start. But when he opened the book the first things he saw were photographs of lush green valleys with narrow paths and rope bridges spanning gorges and rivers. Climbers, weighed down by heavy rucksacks, were walking along the paths and crossing the bridges. And many miles in the distance beyond the valleys were the tallest mountains you have ever seen. But one mountain stood out above all the rest. It was Everest, the tallest mountain in the world.
